To Dyspeptics.

The most common signs of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, are an oppression at the stomach, nausea, flatulency, water-brash, heart-burn, vomiting, loss of appetite, and constipation. Dyspeptic patients suffer untold miseries, bodily and mental. They should stimulate the digestion, and secure regular daily action of the bowels, by the use of moderate doses of

After the bowels are regulated, one of these Pills, taken each day after dinner, is usually all that is required to complete the cure.

AYER'S PILLS are sugar-coated and purely vegetable—a pleasant, entirely safe, and reliable medicine for the cure of all disorders of the stomach and bowels. They are the best of all purgatives for family use.

MAUD MULLER'S BROTHER.

What if the maiden wore the dress,
Of strict patrician pride;
If hands bore leisure's deep impress,
And eyes and cheek spoke wealth beside;
If high-wrought mind from learning's mart
Was stocked with all the wise revere?
Though fate had set them wide apart,
Yet love could bring them near.

What if he sprung from humble state,
A toiler at the plow,
If not erect of mien or great
Of mind, or high and noble brow?
What if his pulses did not start,
Moore's Scott's or Byron's name to hear?
Though fate had sent them far apart,
Yet love could bring them near.

They met and loved and knew not why?
Their difference was forgot;
She burned her pride in passion's sigh,
And love refined his lowly lot!
Their lives were led by love's strong heart,
Nor recked of caste's despairing sneer;
Though fate had sent them far apart,
Yet love had brought them near.

THE BUG MAN.

BY FLORA L. W. STANFIELD.

The proverbial straw had broken the metaphorical camel's back. The patience of Charlotte Brantome, usually equal to the exigencies of the occasion, was exhausted. The twins, as a matter of course, were the culprits. They, however, with the complacency natural to boys of six or thereabouts, were indifferent to the tempest of despair which raged within their sister's breast. They had considerately refrained from adding deceit to their guilt, but had confessed, fully and unreservedly, to rifling the canary's nest, to tearing a jacket, and losing a hat down a well, to eating the strawberries that were saved for supper, and to catching their most faithful hen with a fish-hook. The fish-hook represented the straw; Charlotte the camel. She could have borne anything better than downright cruelty developed so early in one of her own blood. She never was a boy.

"And a man was here," said Popsey.

"A bug man," volunteered Wopsey, the other twin. "And he asked us about everything, and we said our mother wasn't very well and our sister was an old maid school ma'am."

Charlotte winced. Where had he picked up that expression? And had it come to that?

"You must not talk to strange men about mother or me. What did he want?"

"He wanted to see you."

"Me?" Visions of tramps, of spying burglars, only they had nothing to "burgle," as Popsey had said one day, came into her mind. "How did he look?"

"He was beautiful." "He was dreadful," said the twins in duet.

Further questioning elicited these facts: He was young; he was old; he was short; he was tall; he wore spectacles; he wore a mustache, and was a bug-man. In the last and crowning fact the boys agreed.

Practice had made Miss Brantome a tolerable clairvoyant, so far as reading those two small minds was concerned. She jumped at the conclusion that some wandering naturalist chasing an elusive bug had chanced that way, and gave the subject no more attention. She had other things to think of than "bug-men" or any men, and the problem of how to provide a new hat for Wopsey and how to instill remorse into the hearts of her charges drove other thoughts away.

Sitting down on the lower doorstep of the house that had been home to her for six and twenty years, she tried to reason it out. The sun was yet high, the days were at their longest, Behind her flowed the tireless river; in front of her across the prairie, the hills were green. In the field of rye over the way gleamed a white wooden cross. Her grandfather, in whose veins flowed some of the blue blood of France, had bought a home in this western country when the remnant of an Indian tribe had still property to sell. The deed of sale provided for the reservation of their little burying ground. The grain grew thick around; but the tiny village of the dead was never disturbed by the spade or plough.

Old Pierre, however, had never prospered. Neither did Pierre the younger; and one night, when riding home, his horse shied in the moonlight and threw him with his head against a stone; he left no legacy but the homestead and a debt to his wife and children. There was a gap of twenty years between Charlotte and the twin babies, and she really had a third infant on her hands, for her mother was nothing more useful than that after her husband's death. She was not feeble-minded exactly, but painfully gentle—strange and unaccountable.

Charlotte shouldered her burdens with a brave heart. Her French accent—for Grandfather Brantome's blood had never filtered through Canada—brought her employment in a school town near by. The long walks back and forth kept the roses blooming in her cheeks, the boys were good—sometimes—and she, being busy, was happy. It requires leisure to be successfully miserable.

The burying ground typified to her the the "daily martyrdom of private life." And now looking at it, her heart grew light. The new hat would cost but a trifle. Surely there were more strawberries ripe in the garden, the canary would lay more eggs, the jacket could be mended, and old speckle had proved superior to the fish hook. But what could the boys be screaming about?

"The bug-man! the bug-man!" they were shouting, trotting toward her with all their might on their sandy, little feet. It was certainly strange. Why should a stranger call twice? That he should come once was not surprising—but twice?

"We showed him your photograph," said Popsey, "and he said you didn't look like an old maid a bit."

"And he said," went on the other terrible infant without a pause, "wasn't we proud to have such a sister, he wished he had, and then he had such a lot of bugs; he puts them to sleep with medicine and sticks pins through 'em, and he has a gold watch and he let us wind it up, and we told him to come again some more and here he is."

Charlotte was speechless, but in some way she found herself rising to her feet to greet a gentleman who was taking off his hat to her and bowing with a grace which even Grandfather Brantome would have approved.

"Miss Brantome, I believe."

She acquiesced in silence.

"I am gathering materials for an historical work, and was directed to you for information concerning the antiquities of this region. And I might as well say now that I have references and all that sort of thing."

"Then you are not—" She stopped; he smiled.

"No, I am not exactly a bug-man, as these little fellows have called me, although I must plead guilty to a slight leaning in that direction. Yet just now I would joyfully part with the biggest bugs of my collection if in exchange I might examine your grandfather's papers."

He was so gracefully genial that one could no more be absurdly dignified with him than the golden robin singing on the Indian cross.

"Will you walk in?"

"I will sit out here instead if you will permit me to do so."

So Popsey and Wopsey dragged a chair and then stood motionless and wonder-eyed listening to the talk of discovery and adventure. They did not understand it very well until the conversation turned to Indian lore. Indians and bears they could comprehend...Then the mother, attracted by a strange voice, drew near the door in her melancholy wavering way.

"The postmaster's wife thought that La Salle was an Indian chief," Charlotte was saying, "and she had heard of Father Marquette, but supposed him the priest down at La Paz."

"I met a woman the other day who thought a herbarium was a bug," remarked Mr. Duncan. Then they laughed.

But everything comes to an end. The boys began a dumb show behind the stranger's back to indicate to their sister that they were perishing of hunger; so she let the conversation lag in order to end the call.

"Come to-morrow and see the papers if you like," she said. "It will be Saturday, and I shall be at home to answer questions."

He thanked her and withdrew, jumping over the rail fence which skirted the field of rye, in order to get a nearer view of the cross, on which not one, but a dozen golden robins were holding a vesper conclave. And the tea-kettle was soon singing in the Brantome kitchen a song as gay as that of the robins, and Charlotte was not her careful self as she picked the strawberries for tea.

"Half of 'em green," said the disgusted Wopsey. "Spect she's thinking of the bug-man."

It certainly was astonishing how much consultation the Brantome manuscripts needed. And, too, Mr. Duncan required so much assistance. It was "Miss Brantome, will you kindly read this list while I copy it?" or "Miss Charlotte, really I can't make out whether this is an e or an i," all the while. Grandfather Brantome would have begun to inquire as to marriage settlements and Scotch pedigrees had he been alive to see those chestnut locks, innocent of bangs, and that dark mustache in such dangerous proximity. It was the old story—two young heads bending over the same page. No word of love had passed. All was on a strictly business basis—the history of the missions of the Northwest the objective aim.

But at last there was no excuse for lingering any longer. The hills across the prairie were red and gold, the robins had fled, the grain around the little burying-ground had been cut and stowed away.

Charlotte was walking home as usual. Far away in the road two moving dots appeared, which developed into the twins as they came nearer. Tears were cutting briny furrows down their not very clean cheeks. Hysterical sobs alone came from their mouths as they tried to speak, but finally the sisterly intuition eliminated these words from the chaos:

"Mother she runned away! She said she would if we didn't stop pounding, and we didn't, and she has runned!"

That poor mother! She had made the same threat a hundred times before, but had been pacified.

"Which way? Tell me quickly," thinking of the river, so tireless and so cruel.

"She runned up the railroad track."

No more words were needed. Back of the garden was the branch railroad from La Paz. The evening train was nearly due. Leaving the twins to toddle after as well as they could in their exhausted state, she ran. Ran? She flew. The bright invalid shawl was a beacon. Mrs. Brantome sat upon the track, idly playing with some yellow flowers. Charlotte knew her patient well.

"Mother," she said, "it is late and the boys are calling, and you must feed the chickens."

The mother shook her head. Persuasion was no persuader. Then Charlotte scolded. Alike useless. Then, as a last resort, she used a gentle force. A failure. Sit there and pull those yellow flowers to pieces—that the poor unbalanced one would do—nothing else. In Heaven's name, what was to be done? Those who have had experience know the strength of the insane. The train whistled for the crossing a mile away and just then (some guardian angel guided him) James Duncan jumped the fence, a wet handkerchief in his hand.

Blessing upon the medicine which subdued the bugs! It subdued this poor woman in a moment, and he had lifted her out of danger before the train rushed past. Then he explained. He had been copying the inscription on the Indian's tombstone as the boys went screaming by. He gathered from their incoherent words what the matter was. The chloroform idea was simply an inspiration.

"How can I repay you?" asked wet eyed Charlotte, as the party, boys, mother and all, were walking back.

"By making over to me Pierre Brantome's manuscripts—and his granddaughter. I can never write the history without her."

"Well," softly, "in the cause of science—perhaps."

And this is how it came to pass that the boys marched up the church aisle before the robins came again, with Charlotte and the bug-man.

An English author once attended a masked ball without a mask or domino. The lady of the house, a little piqued at this slight, approached him and said: "And pray, sir, what character do you assume?" "I appear as a gentleman," said he. "Ah, a capital disguise!" And he withdrew for repairs.

Four years ago a Sacramento money-lender loaned a young man $5, with interest at 10 per cent. per month, compounded monthly. The borrower has just paid $482 in liquidation of the debt.

St. Petersburg was founded by Peter the Great in 1703.

THE HABIT OF WASTE.

Said a most successful merchant a day or two since to a lad who was opening a parcel, "Young man, untie those strings—don't cut them."

It was the first remark he had made to a new employee. It was the first lesson for the lad to learn, and it involved the principle of success or failure in his business career. Pointing to a well-dressed man of thirty years behind a counter, the merchant said: "There is a man who always whips out his scissors and cuts the strings of a package in three or four places. He is a good salesman, but never will be anything more. I presume he lives from hand to mouth, and very likely is always more or less in debt. The trouble with him is that he was never taught to save. I told the boy just now to untie the string instead of cutting it, not so much for the value of the string as to teach him that everything must be saved and nothing wasted. If the idea can be firmly impressed upon the mind of a beginner in life that nothing was made to be wasted, you have laid the foundation of success."

The moral of this little incident is self-evident. A young man, well brought up, with a fair education, seeks employment in a business house. The habit of waste in little things is noticeable, and becomes a drawback on his value and usefulness to his employer. The disregard of saving strings and paper develops into a carelessness that runs through all his habits. He does not get on in the world because he is wasteful. Small sums of money slip through his fingers almost unconsciously, because they are small. He wastes time by the minute, without a thought of the old adage: "Take care of the minutes and the hours will take care of themselves."

Sitting in the counting-room of one of the oldest and most successful merchants the other day, we noticed that he cut off the blank sheet of the letter he was engaged in filing. The name of the man is a synonym of charity and benevolence, and his liberality in all good works is almost unbounded. His attention being called to what seemed an unusual proceeding, he said:

"Yes, it may strike you as singular to save these half sheets of paper, but I commenced life a poor boy in a country store, and this was one of the first lessons in saving little things that was taught me by my employer. He has been nearly half a century under the sod, but I never do this without thinking of the good old man. I believe it was the secret of my success in life."

This saving of little things does not imply stinginess or meanness. It is the habit of saving instead of simply wasting. It is embodied in the motto, "Waste, not, want not."

THE CAPACITY OF A STEAMSHIP.—Few persons realize what can be placed in the hold of a steamship. They read that the cargo of such a vessel is valued at so many dollars, and that there were so many bushels of grain and innumerable other articles, on its manifest, but they never think that there is not a building outside of the large cities that would contain a ship's cargo. As an instance of what is placed in a vessel, we give the following list of the freight in the American steamship British Princess, which sailed from Philadelphia, Pa., recently for Liverpool: 1,000 packages provisions, 2,550 barrels and 1,000 hogsheads of sugar, 47,000 bushels wheat, 600 bales cotton, 300 tierces lard, 1,020 quarters of fresh beef, 7,500 bags flour, 120 tierces tobacco, 250 tierces beef, 600 barrels syrup, 500 boxes soap, 550 bags oil cake, 40 hogsheads tallow, 31 cases biscuit, 3 bales leather, 4 crates ice cream freezers, besides coal for the voyage and provisions for the men.

HOW FAR ONE CAN SEE.—A discussion is going on in Europe concerning the distance at which large objects on the earth's surface may be visible. Emil Metzger mentions that he once saw, with some difficulty, Keizerspick, in Sumatra, when distant 110 English miles; and he also made out Gug Merapi, in Java, when 180 miles away. From the Piz Muraun, near Dissentis, E. Hill has seen Mont Blanc, the intervening space measuring about 110 miles. Z. Starkie Gardner states that Mont Blanc is visible from the Piz Languard, though distant about 3 degrees. In Greenland, Mr. Whymper beheld a mountain from which he was separated by 150 miles; and from Marseilles, Zach saw Mont Canigon at a distance of 158 miles. The whole range of the Swiss Alps has been looked by J. Hippisely when 200 miles away; while Sir W. Jones has affirmed that the Himalayas have appeared to view from the great distance of 244 miles.

A FRENCHMAN has invented a revolver which, though so small as to be conveniently carried in the vest pocket, can be fired 10 times, without reloading, and with greater ease and certainty than those of the old pattern. The whole length of the weapon is four inches, which can be reduced to two and five-eighths by unscrewing the barrel.

TOWARD the close of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, a blacksmith manufactured a padlock of iron, steel and brass, of eleven pieces, and a pipe key, all of which only weighed one grain. He also made a chain of gold of 45 links which fastened to the lock and key and put it around the neck of a flea, which drew the whole with perfect ease. The chain, key, lock and flea altogether weighed one grain and a half.

IT is stated that the waters of St. Anthony's Falls, Minneapolis, are eating their way around the apron and tend to ruin the magnificent water power. Several years ago a wooden apron was built under the falls to protect the soft sandstone ledge over which they flow and through which the water was eating. Water has got under the wooden protection, and it seems certain that the whole thing must go. If this happens, the damage to milling property will reach millions of dollars.

"HERE'S a musical salesman advertised for. Why don't you apply, Ned?" "I? Why, I'm not musical." "Perhaps not; but I notice that you can blow your own horn, you're familiar with the bars, your remarks are full of slurs, you're always giving notes, and all the rest."—Hotel Gazette.

HE SPANKED THE BOY.

All the adult passengers in the waiting room had their attention attracted by his antics. He wanted candy, and he wanted to see the river, and he wanted to go aboard the train, and he wanted more than any city the size of Detroit could possibly furnish free gratis. His mother hushed him up the best she could, and several times he slapped her face and kicked her and got off without even a pinch. By and by an old man who sat near her and whose feet the boy had walked on several times, began to get nervous, and, turning to his right hand neighbor, said:

"Land o' massy! but I've either got to git outer here or spank that boy!"

"He just aches for it!" growled the other.

"He does. He puts me in mind of my William. I've seen William when nothing on airth but a spanking would put good nature into him."

"I say I will go!" shouted the boy at this moment.

"Please, Johnny, be good," entreated his mother.

"I won't!"

"Oh, do! See how they are all looking at us."

"I don't care if they are!"

With that he walked up to the old man and made a kick, and then the curtain went up on the play. With one twist and two motions he was seized, whirled over a pair of knees, and before he could squawk once the spanking machine began its work. If ever a boy of seven was neatly wound up and the ugly taken out of him inside of sixty seconds the work was no more complete than in his case.

"There!" said the spanker as he upended the child and placed him on a seat, "you'll feel better—a heap better. Hated to do it, you know, but saw that you was suffering for it. Beg your mother's pardon for interfering in fam'ly matters, but you set right thar 'till the train is ready!"

The boy "set," and such a calm and solid peace stole over the crowd that the yells of the backmen outdoors gave everybody a pain.

PAID BY THE PRIVATE.

The Baltimore Sun revives the following story of Elias Howe, the inventor of sewing machines:

At the outbreak of the war, when he was a millionaire, he enlisted as a private to show his patriotism and independence. Money grew scarce, and his regiment, which was sent South, was left unpaid for three months. At the end of that time Howe, in his private's uniform, one day entered the office of the quartermaster and asked when the soldiers of the regiment were to be paid.

"I don't know," replied the quartermaster.

"Well, how much is owed them?" blandly asked the private.

"What is that to you?" said the storekeeper, with a look of surprise.

"Oh, nothing," said Howe, nonchalantly; "if you'll figure out the amount I'll give you my check for the whole business."

"Who are you?" gasped the quartermaster.

"Elias Howe, and my check is good for the pay of the entire army."

The quartermaster made out his bills, and Howe gave him his check for three months' pay for his regiment. The Government afterward reimbursed him.

THE FIRST MELON.—The first watermelon of the season was received yesterday by Mr. Dittler, a Whitehall street grocer. It was sent him by a particular friend in Florida. The melon attracted much attention, and many efforts were made to buy it, and fancy prices were offered. It weighed twenty-two pounds. A colored citizen saw it and his eyes fairly danced with delight.

"Boss! what dat millun wof?" he asked.

"Four dollars," answered Mr. Dittler.

"Boss, won't yer take er dollar for dat millun?" asked the old man.

"Yes; give me your dollar," said Mr. Dittler, in jest.

The old man began rapidly to remove an old silver watch, and tendering it, said:

"Boss, take dis watch and gimme dat millun, and ginst Saddy I'll pay dat dollar and git dat watch."

He didn't get the melon.—Atlanta Constitution.

ALLY was in the country for the first time.

One day he came running in from the orchard.

"Oh, grandpa! I threw a stone at a squirrel and broke his neck!" cried he.

"Why didn't you bring him in?" asked grandpa.

"Why, he ran away!" said Ally.

Grandpa was surprised.

"How could a squirrel with a broken neck run, Ally?"

Ally caught a twinkle in grandpa's eye. He knew that grandpa was laughing at him.

"Well," said he, "he didn't 'zactly run, grandpa; he kind of slided off!"

"WHAT do you want, boy?"

"Ma sent me after a tourist's guide."

"Sure your mother sent you?"

"Oh, yes, she wants to know the name of the best hotel at Long Branch and the price per day."

"Going to the seashore?"

"No, sir. We are going out to spend two weeks in the country at my Uncle William's but ma wants to post up on Long Branch and be able to tell everybody what hotel we stopped at and how expensive it was!"

AS Sam Jordan, a colored man, was exploring around the foundation of the old Spanish lighthouse on Anastasia Island, near St. Augustine, Fla., a few days ago, he discovered, while digging away some rocks and earth, the skeleton of a man, apparently well-preserved and standing in an upright position, looking seaward. As this lighthouse and tower was erected by the Spaniards about 1735, and this man's bones were found some twenty feet or more below the surface, or directly under the foundation, the question is, how did it get there, and in this erect position?

"RUN for the doctor, quick! help! help! Dot baby has swallowed a nickel," exclaimed Mrs. Schaumburg. "Mine Gott, you make so much fuss as if it was a $20 gold piece. Be calm, Repecca," replied Moses.—Texas Siftings.

TWO SORTS OF COURAGE.

Commodore Garrison was once Captain of a steamboat on the Mississippi, and while selling tickets one day he happened to rouse the ire of a passionate old man, who drew his pistol, and, presenting it at the narrow window, full in the Captain's face, fired.

The cap snapped. He tried a second time, and again failed. Garrison's own pistol lay within reach, but instead of taking it up he quietly opened a drawer, took out a box of percussion caps and, handing it to his would-be murderer, said:

"Take a new cap; your's don't work well."

The furious man stared at him a moment, then burst into a laugh, and held out his hand.

Another kind of courage is exemplified in a story told by a young New York inventor who, about twenty years ago, spent every dollar he was worth in an experiment, which, if successful, would introduce his invention to public notice and insure his fortune and—what he valued more—his usefulness.

It failed. The next morning the daily papers heaped unsparing ridicule on him. Hope for the future seemed vain. He looked around the shabby room, where his wife, a delicate little woman, was preparing breakfast. He was without a penny. He seemed like a fool in his own eyes; all these years of hard work were wasted. If he were out of the way, she could return to her friends. He went into his chamber, sat down and buried his face in his hands, with a desperate resolve to end it all. Then, with a fiery heat flashing through his body he stood erect.

"It shall succeed," he said, shutting his teeth. His wife was crying over the papers when he went back. "They are very cruel," she said.

"They don't understand. I'll make them understand," he replied, cheerfully.

"It was a fight for six years," he said afterward. "Poverty and sickness and contempt followed me. I had nothing left but the dogged determination that it should succeed." It did succeed. The invention was a great and useful one. The inventor is now a prosperous and happy man. "Be sure you're right," he says to younger men, "then never give up."—Youth's Companion.

MAGRUDER'S MEMORY.

He walked into the office of Prothonotary Sweltzer the other day, and when his eye lit on the Prothonotary his face brightened up.

"How are you, Gen. Sweltzer?"

Gen. Sweltzer took the offered hand but evidently did not know who was at the other end of it.

"You don't know me? I'm John Sander of the Fourth Michigan Infantry—your old brigade."

They shook again. John Sanders sat down, and soon explained that he had been to Washington to look after a pension. It had taken more time than he had expected, and he was pretty well down to the bottom of his pocket. His old commander provided him with transportation as far as Cleveland, and then they fell into that inevitable talk over war times.

"And you say you didn't go to prison when we were both captured at Gaine's Mill?" exclaimed Gen. Sweltzer. How did you escape?"

"It was this way, General. It was Magruder's men caught me. They took us up to division headquarters before turning us over to the guard. Magruder and his staff were looking us over, and I thought I would make a try to get put in the officer's squad, so I calls out:

"'Hello, Gen. Magruder. How have you been these twenty years?'

"'Who the devil are you?' says he.

"'I'm John Sanders. I was in Company B., Fourth Ohio Infantry, in the Mexican war.'

"'Who was your Colonel?' he says very stern.

"'You were.'

"'Your Captain?'

"'Anderson.'

"'Your First Lieutenant?'

"'Roberts.'

"'By ——, gentlemen, he was thar,' cried Gen. Magruder, turning to his staff. 'This fellow was in my regiment in the Mexican war. Well, well. So you are my prisoner now. W-e-l-l, well. Gentlemen, what can we do for one of my old Ohio boys, who has happened to get on the wrong side this time?'

"They laughed, talked together a few minutes, and then ordered out an escort, who hoisted a white flag, conducted me to our picket line, and turned me loose."—Detroit Free Press.

TO BE CHANGED IF RESTLESS.—"Robert," remarked the wife of a penurious man, "I am on my death bed. I have tried to be a good and faithful wife, and have but one favor to ask of you before I die."

"What is that, Margaret?"

"You know I was born and reared in Cleveland. It was there I first met you, and the happiest hours of our wedded life were spent. You remember this, Robert?"

"Yes," uneasily.

"My relatives are all buried there, and when I am gone I wish to rest beside them. Will you grant me this one favor?"

"There will be considerable expense attached to it," musingly.

"Oh, Robert! I will never rest easy in my grave anywhere else."

"Well, Maggie, I'll tell you what I'll do. I don't want to be mean about the thing. I'll bury you here first, and then, if I notice any signs of restlessness on your part, I'll take you to Cleveland afterward."

GRANT REFUSED LEE'S SWORD.

One of the few surviving eye-witnesses of Lee's surrender at Appomattox was interviewed concerning General Jubal Early's recent denial of the story that Lee's sword was tendered Grant. The man's name is Benjamin Jeffries, a resident of Des Moines. He served through the war in a Pennsylvania regiment, and at the time of Lee's surrender was a member of Company A, 191st regiment. When asked as to the circumstances that followed the close of the fighting at Appomattox he said:

"After fighting ceased General Grant rode to the front, where our regiment was deployed on the skirmish line, and ordered that a guard be stationed across the road leading down to the village and that no one be allowed to pass. About two o'clock in the afternoon he returned, accompanied by an escort of two or three hundred officers. Leaving all but one aid behind he rode through the lines and down the slope toward the Court-house, a short distance off. As he did so, General Lee, accompanied by one aid, came toward him from the opposite direction. About seventy-five yards from where we were stationed on guard stood a small story and a half log house, near which grew a large apple tree. Grant and Lee met at this point and halted at this tree. Lee rode a large, handsome roan, while Grant was mounted on a small black horse. Dismounting, Lee drew his sword and offered it to Grant, but Grant refused to accept it, and, declining it with a wave of his hand, it was put back in the scabbard. Then Grant offered his hand to Lee, and they shook hands, as did their aids, and all engaged in conversation for about five minutes, when, remounting, they rode away to the Court-house, where the papers completing the terms of the surrender were drawn up. I saw the first meeting between Grant and Lee, and saw Grant refuse to take his sword, for I stood less than a hundred yards away at the time. I have as vivid a recollection of that scene as if it had taken place yesterday.

COLORED WEDDING.

Thomas M. Field has written out from memory a description of a colored wedding under the old regime which he says used to be related with gusto by Major Herman Bowman: A tall, dignified and clerical-dressed negro (Tom Menzies,) officiating, said in pompous tones:

"Silence in dis 'sembly. Here is a couple who have walked out to-night, wishing to be rejined in and thro' love, and wishing all dem dat have anything 'twixt dem come forward and speak now: if not, let dem hold der peace now and forevermore. I wants every ear to hear and every heart to enjoy.

"Mr. Irvin Johnson, whomsoever stands fastly by your left side, do you take her for your beloved wife, to wait on her through sickness and through health, safe and be safe, loving and beloving, holy and holy; do you love her mother, do you love her father, do you love her sister, do you love her brothers, and, above all, do you love God de best?" Answer, I do.

"Miss Mary Jones, whomsoever stands so fastly by your right side, do you take for your loving husband, to wait on him, through health and confliction, through affliction and conviction, safe and be safe, holy and be holy; do you love his mother, do you love his father, do you love his master, do you love his mistress; but, above all, do you love God the best?" Answer, I do.

"I command you, Mr. Irvin, to hold Miss Mary so fastly by de right hand, and by authority pronounce you both to be man and wife, by the commandments of God. What God jines together let no man 'sunder.

"We shall hope and trusting through God and his 'Postles that you may live right, and that you may die right, now and forevermore. Now, Mr. Jim, s'lute your bride. Let us sing a him:

"Plunged in a gulf of despair," etc.—Woodford Sun.

THE design of the American flag was adopted by Congress June 14, 1777. The stripes were first used in a flag which was presented by Captain Markoe to the Philadelphia City Troop in 1775, and still in the possession of that organization. In it the stripes appear in the upper left hand corner, where the stars now are. Where the stars come from, or who suggested them, is a much disputed but little known problem.

JOHN WILKES BOOTH was shot in a barn near Bowling Green, Va., April 26, 1865, 12 days after the assassination of President Lincoln, by Boston Corbett. His body was first buried in the Arsenal at Washington. In 1866, at the request of Edwin Booth, the remains were removed to a cemetery in Baltimore, and interred by the side of those of his father and other members of his family.

A NEW method of dressing wounds, by which their healing is said to be hastened and the pain made to disappear at once, has been brought into public notice by a French surgeon. He applies compresses wet with a decoction of 30 parts of valerian root in 1,000 parts of water. He states expressly that this treatment is of no avail in the case of deep wounds.

REV. H. L. HAWEIS writes: "Morning literary work is usually characterized by freshness, continuity of grasp and vigor; night work by fever, excitement and less condensation. This I believe to be the rule, and with exceptions, in speaking thus generally, it is, of course, impossible to deal. Of one thing I am certain, that for all head workers, especially literary men, the following rules will be found golden; To bed before 12; to work before 7; as little liquid as possible, and no smoking before breakfast."

"DARLING, it's bed time; all the little chickens have gone to bed." "Yes, mamma; and so has the old hen."

ROMANTIC INCIDENTS.

An interesting and romantic story, with a decided local flavor, has just reached us from England. It will have an especial interest for the friends of that charming companion, Christian gentleman and able telegrapher, James D. Reid, who, in the fifties and sixties, was a resident of Utica and the superintendent of the New York, Albany and Buffalo telegraph company.

Mr. Reid had two daughters, with one of whom this story has to do. In 1862, at 12 years of age, Annie B. Reid was a sprightly girl in Miss Kelly's seminary. Prior to this she had spent two years in France with her mother, and she spoke French like a native. Her education was subsequently completed at Miss Bonney's, in Philadelphia. As she matured she developed a taste for music, and had a voice of unusual expressiveness and power. In 1880 she went to Milan to study under Giovanni, who promised her great success. In 1881 she fell in the streets of Mentone from sunstroke, and had to be carried to Paris for treatment, and for years she struggled for her life.

Last September she had so far recovered as to be able to return to America. Mrs. Reid had crossed the Atlantic to accompany her daughter homeward. In paying a farewell visit in London the daughter met a friend whom she had known for some time—a refined and courteous gentleman of her own age and of good family—named Arthur Percy Aylmer, who proposed marriage. He had remote expectations, had a modest home with his mother, who was an authoress and had noble connections in England, but he had no business and only a small income. However, the regard which was professed by the suitor was returned and the marriage soon took place, the mother (Mrs. Reid) returning to New York alone.

Then began a struggle to find business. Half a year passed with no result. On the 15th of March, only three months ago, a strange thing happened. Sir John Aylmer, aged 24, was finishing his studies at Cambridge, England. On the 12th he had fallen from a bicycle and on the 15th he died. The death of Sir John Aylmer carried a baronetcy and large estates, including an old baronical estate, to the heritage of an old man of 85, the grandfather of Mr. Aylmer, son-in-law of Mr. Reid. Mr. Aylmer's father was dead, and young Aylmer was sent for to manage the estate. Here was employment, coupled with a generous income. Only a month later, however, the old Baron died, and young Aylmer became a baronet, with a large entailed estate, with a rental of $50,000 a year. And the little girl who played on our seminary lawn and was educated by Miss Kelly is now the Baroness Aylmer.

THE bones of Pizarro, the conqueror of Peru, lie in the crypt of the Grand Cathedral at Lima, which he built in 1540, and which is the most imposing ecclesiastical edifice in America. It is said to have cost $9,000,000. The money came from the old Inca temples, which were robbed of their gold and silver ornaments and stripped of their carved timbers by the Spaniards.

THE new English ministry will not disturb the work of its predecessors in regard to Russia and Egypt. Both are regarded as serious points of interest to the British nation, and will need the wisest diplomacy to secure their settlement in a satisfactory form. The outlook is far from clear, and Russia's real intentions seem veiled under clouds impenetrable to British eyes.

That Russia would if she could use Afghanistan through which to reach English India, is fully believed in London, and the suggestion to fortify the mountain passes against Russian aggression is becoming general. Permanent peace in that quarter can hardly be expected.

IT is observed that Republican journals are not so anxious about offices for soldiers since the Democratic boys are given a chance to get in. The depth of such patriotism is not unfathomable.

THE Republican State Convention at Harrisburg on Wednesday nominated M. S. Quay for State Treasurer on the first ballot, his sweeping vote showing how perfectly the old machine had been prepared to work: Quay 1961 Longenecker 27, Greenawalt 7, McDevitt 15, Wigton 5.

A caucus of Quay delegates the evening previous took all the arrangements for the Convention into their own hands—named officers, committees and order of business—and the Convention was run in accordance with their programme. The "shouting" completeness of the work was meant to terrify the minority, but the effect is yet to be seen. There are those in that party who will not bow to the rule of Boss Quay.

THERE are those who believe, as we have all along suspected, that the quarrel between the bosses, Quay and Magee, was all a sham, and that the latter brought out McDevitt only as a "blind" to divert attention from Quay's machine history and thus the more certainly keep the State Treasury in machine hands.

THE wheat crop is reported to be turning out better than was expected from its unpromising appearance in the early part of the season. The yield is not only somewhat larger than was looked for, but the quality is said to be excellent.

QUAY's record has been furnished by Republican journals, and if the campaign becomes rough on him their's must be the blame. Quay cannot silence the echoes of the old battles between the machine and the honest portion of the Republican party.

JUDGE LAMBERT TREE, of Chicago, has been appointed minister to Belgium. Illinois Democrats say that if Mr. Morrison had withdrawn in time, Judge Tree would have been elected to the United States Senate, so prominent and trusted is he.

THE Navy Yards are to be reorganized, the corrupt practices introduced by the Republicans broken up, and large sums saved and honest work insured to the government. This administration means to show that the country can live under honest and economic rule.

WHEN President Lincoln first saw Alexander H. Stephens the latter was encased in an immense overcoat of coarse material down to his heels. Upon it being removed, the small and almost fleshless figure of Mr. Stephens surprised the President, and led to the subsequent remark that it "was the littlest ear out of the biggest shuck he ever saw in his life."

THE old machine triumphed at Harrisburg last Wednesday. But will it triumph at the polls? Wise heads in the Republican ranks are shaking. Honesty in office can only be assured by good records. Quay's record is bad.

THE Chambersburg Public Opinion now has eight columns to the page and is otherwise improved. It is among the progressive journals of the State and deserves the high rank it has attained.

THE carpetbagger returns! Ex-U. S. Senator John J. Patterson, from South Carolina, has again become a citizen of Mifflintown—his native place—where he will hereafter vote and work for the "God and morality" ticket as made up by Quay in command of the old Republican machine.

THE Democratic State Convention will meet at Harrisburg August 26th. Hon. Joseph Powell, of Bradford county, Senator Humes, of Crawford, ex-Congressman Mutchler, of Easton, and ex-Congressman Reilly, of Altoona, are so far named for State Treasurer; others will no doubt follow. The Democratic chance is looked upon as "fair to middling," to say the least; and there are Republicans who now fear it. The "flourish of trumpets" over Quay's nomination will die out as soon as the deep-seated hostility of honest Republicans to the despotic ways of the machine once begin to get voice.

THE work of making appointments goes steadily on, and the changes are many since the new administration came in. The President exercises great care in selecting his appointees and tries to find "the right man for the right place," in every instance. Of course there is some fault found; an angel couldn't please everybody.

IT turns out that James G. Blaine did not attend the Grand Army meeting at Portland, Maine, because he was not invited. The extreme cruelty of the omission centred in Logan's glorification in Blaine's own State.

THE Republicans of the State may yet wish they had taken the advice of the Press and defeated Boss Quay in the convention.

THAT decided and influential Republican journal, the Chambersburg Opinion, declared, a few days previous to the meeting of the Republican State Convention, that "the nomination of Quay would subject the party to Democratic attacks that could not be consistently answered;" and that the Convention would "do well to take some other man—some one who is in accord with his party, as well as honest and capable. To do otherwise is to invite defeat." Honest Republicans will stick a pin right here—and it will remain until voting day.

UNITED STATES SENATOR MCPHERSON, of New Jersey, in a published statement utterly explodes the charge of bargaining between Senator Sewell and himself in the interest of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He proves that he was not even in the room in the Continental Hotel where they are said to have been overheard.

THE nomination of Quay inspires hope among Democrats.

ASIATIC CHOLERA is on its travels westward, and the progress made by it is noted with no little apprehension. U. S. Consul Mason sent to the State Department from Marseilles a very interesting and valuable paper regarding the practical lessons as to the prevention and treatment of cholera taught by the epidemic in that city last year. He names four classes of persons peculiarly liable to the attacks of the disease—those who live under bad hygienic conditions as to food and lodgings; those who are imprudent as to eating, drinking and exposure; those who are weakened by alcoholic excesses, and those who suffer from chronic digestive derangement. His views as to the causes of the disease coincide in the main with those of a correspondent of the New York Herald, who recently paid a four days visit to Murcia, the most terribly cholera-stricken city in Spain, and one that has been peculiarly subject in former years to such visitations. Murcia is the capital city of the province of that name, lying on both sides of the river Segura, which divides it into unequal parts connected by bridges. The city proper contains forty thousand inhabitants, and its immediate suburbs sixty thousand more, making a total population of one hundred thousand. Since the outbreak of the cholera thirty thousand persons have fled from the place, and eighty per cent. of the stores have been closed. The number of persons attacked with the epidemic in the city of Murcia between the fifth of June and the thirtieth of that month was three thousand two hundred and fifteen. Of this number thirteen hundred and fifty died. The number of new cases continued to average about one hundred and thirty per day.

LOOK AT THE PICTURE.—Quay has been charged by his own party papers with "a grave delinquency and scandal in the management of the State Treasury," with unfaithness and dishonesty as a member of the pardon board and with other wrongs of an equally serious character, which make it seem impossible that a majority of the voters of this great state can ever be influenced to deliberately award him a trust of such great responsibility as is that of the official custodian of its monies. There has not been a dirty political scheme entered into by the Republicans of Pennsylvania for many years that Quay hasn't directed or had a hand in. He is the embodiment of all that the honest Independent Republicans protested against in voting for Cleveland, and that the dishonest and insincere are constantly professing to abominate and constantly going back to support. He differs from these latter only in being no hypocrite and in openly defending the political tactics he pursues. But he is a bad man, with bad antecedents. His surroundings and associates are bad. His methods could not well be worse. He shows courage of a certain sort in being willing, with such a corrupt record as he has made, to face the whole people of the state and submit his ambition to their arbitrament, but, as the Union-Leader so aptly says, it is courage founded in the faith that fraud is made respectable and must triumph when boldly avowed and defended. To elect such a man State Treasurer would be to put as ugly a stain upon the good name of the Commonwealth as has ever yet tarnished it.

QUAY must fight a defensive campaign, say the Philadelphia Press, Evening Telegraph, Wilkesbarre Record, Scranton Republican and other prominent Republican papers—and surely they ought to know.

FAT DEPOSITS.—According to the official statement of State Treasurer Livsey, Chris. Magee's Allegheny National Bank at Pittsburg has a deposit of the State funds of $620,000.00—three times more than its capital stock; and Kemble's "People's Bank" of Philadelphia, a private concern, regulated by "ADDITION, DIVISION AND SILENCE," has a deposit of $310,000.00. Here we have almost a million of dollars in two concerns controlled by wreckers who never pay any interest for this State money to the tax-payers. These are the soft snaps Quay is after. He thinks "Chris" has fingered it long enough; and he may not have divided properly with the ring.—Clearfield Republican.

THE old machine has evidently determined to force Quay through whether the people approve or not. But the people have learned how to make a protest effective when forbearance will no longer forbear.

THE Philadelphia Times pronounces the Republican platform "a rhetorical display that for length and emptiness and general absurdity has seldom been equaled and never excelled in all the preposterous literature of political conventions."

The Patriot says: "The glitter of the generalities in the Republican State platform makes it difficult to discern what it is all about. But amidst the superabundance of slush the bloody shirt comes gallantly to the fore. Poor old superannuated shirt!"

THE Philadelphia Press, the Republican organ of the State, pronounces the nomination of Quay "a grave mistake."

SENATOR LONGENECKER was announced as the people's candidate; the candidate of those who are opposed to bosses and corruption. He got twenty-seven votes in the state convention. That is the price put upon decency by the Republicans of Pennsylvania.—Bedford Gazette.

JACK LOGAN says: "I hope every Republican who asks to be retained by this administration will be turned out."

The Republican party is "split" on this subject. The "ins" want to stay in, even under a Democratic administration.

THE national military encampment at Philadelphia proved a failure. The people of that city took little or no interest in it, pronouncing it a private speculation.

THE Philadelphia Times condenses a great deal of fact and patriotism in the following sentence: "When the soldier speaks nowadays it is for peace. Only the demagogue trades in the sectional hatred that patriots wish were dead."

BENEATH the surface waters of the apparently harmonious Republican party there is a deep undercurrent of disgust at Quay's nomination.—Lanc. Intel.

WHILE the Republicans of the North are beginning to wave the bloody shirt with renewed energy, the Southern papers are giving accounts of the enthusiasm with which the ex-Confederates of that section waved the Stars and Stripes on the 4th of July.—Patriot.

EIGHT PERSONS DROWNED.—At Minneapolis, on Sunday, eight persons on a small steam yacht were overtaken on the lake in a terrific storm, the boat capsized, and all were drowned. Names of the unfortunate party: Ex-Mayor Rand and wife, daughter and two sons; J. R. Coykendall, wife and daughter, and George McDonald, the engineer. The wildest excitement prevailed throughout the city.

THE Bedford Gazette advocates holding county conventions with open doors. The Democratic conventions of Adams county have always been so held.

THE INDIANS.—Sensible Instructions.—President Cleveland on Friday addressed the following sensible letter to Gen. Sheridan:

"Sir: In view of the possible disturbances that may occur among the Indians now in the Indian Territory, and the contemplated concentration of troops in that locality, I deem it desirable that you proceed at once to the location where trouble is to be apprehended, and advise with and direct those in command as to the steps to be taken to prevent disorder and depredations by the Indians and as to the disposition of the troops.

"Your acquaintance with the history and the habits and customs of these Indians leads me also to request that you invite statements on their part as to any real or fancied injury or injustice towards them, or any other causes that may have led to discontent, and to inform yourself generally as to their condition.

"You are justified in assuring them that any cause of complaint will be fully examined by the authorities here, and if wrongs exist, they shall be remedied.

"I think I hardly need add that they must be fully assured of the determination on the part of the government to enforce their peaceful conduct, and by all the power it has at hand to prevent and punish acts of lawlessness and any outrages upon our settlers."

Gen. Sheridan started on Friday night for the West to carry out the President's instructions. Three thousand troops have been ordered to the Indian Territory.

RASCALLY BANKING.—Geo. W. Bumm, Wm. Bumm and Samuel P. Milligan, charged with defrauding the Shackamaxon Bank out of $300,000 were given a hearing on Wednesday. John S. Kuen, expert, testified that in 1881 Bumm & Sons' checks amounted to $782,671. At the end of 1884 the firm had overdrawn their account $144,850, and for $137,000 drawn by two clerks of the firm to the firm's order were deposited to their credit. The firm's overdraft in 1885 was $10,521, and only $760 was deposited. The teller's books showed false entries, in one case as high as $50,000. Joseph Conklin, a contractor, swore he made an arrangement with President Bumm by which Mr. Bumm gave him a note on which he got the money whenever he needed it. After 1882 he drew the money on his personal check, at Mr. Bumm's advice. He kept no book and made no settlement. He went on with his drafts after Mr. Bumm's death. The Bumms were held in $20,000 and Milligan in $10,000 for trial.

THE PEOPLE LIKE IT.—Whitelaw Reid says: "The political generals of the Republican party are disposed to look upon Cleveland's course as a mild, negative sort of an administration." The settling of the Central American troubles, the squelching of the Oklahoma boomers, the forcing John Roach to live up to his contract, the discharge of a host of unnecessary officials in the Washington departments—all these may be "mild and negative" acts; but they are the kind that win golden opinions from all the honest and patriotic people of the country.

CLEVELAND AND THE POSTMASTERS.—A Washington dispatch to the New York Herald has this:

Cleveland is a man of clear head and strong will. He is a Democrat, and it would scarcely be extravagant to say that he is a bigoted Democrat. He believes in local self-government; in the least possible interference of the government, Federal or State, with the people; in minimizing, as far as it can be done, the sphere of action of the Federal government; in rigid economy in public expenditures and in strict enforcement of all laws whether they are good or bad.

And he believes that public officers are the servants of the people. One of his admonitions to men appointed to country postoffices is: "See that you are polite to everybody. Don't let me hear of your Postoffice being a place where a woman or a child hesitates to go, or where a man opposed to you in politics or anything else is not as pleasantly treated as any one else."

LYNCHINGS.—A dispatch from Kansas says that John Lawrence, colored, aged 17, was locked up in Columbus Saturday night week for assaulting a 11-year-old white girl at Baxter's Springs. On Monday he was taken from the jail and hanged. One of the lynchers was accidentally shot and killed while following Lawrence to the jail.

A special from Trinity, Texas, says: James Hathorn, colored, who attempted a criminal assault on a four-year-old child Friday week, was captured Sunday morning and secreted in the woods that night to prevent lynching. A crowd found him and hanged him to a tree.

A special from Grenada, Miss., says "This afternoon Felix Williams, convicted of murder and sentenced to the penitentiary for life, and Perry McCristian, convicted of murder and sentenced to be hanged August 1, but whose case has been appealed to the Supreme Court, were taken by a mob and hanged."

A GENTLEMAN of experience as an educator who has been visiting some of the Indian schools—not Carlisle—in this state, notes that many of the children under instruction and care as "wards of the nation" are scarcely half-blooded Indians. His suspicions are aroused that the half-breed progeny of a worthless class of whites, who affiliate with probably the worst class of Indians, are being foisted upon the government's care; and that the schools are imposed upon by a mixed parentage anxious only to get rid of their responsibilities.

WHEN it is remembered that forgiveness only comes after long and heartfelt repentance for wrong done, the hope of the Republican party for restoration to power becomes very shadowy.—Lanc. Intel.

REV. HENRY WARD BEECHER, in his Sunday sermon, claimed regeneration, or the new birth, as fitting perfectly into the theory of evolution; and pronounced baptism a harmless delusion, not objectionable if it afford any satisfaction to those who practice it.

R. M. GILBERT, of Huntingdon, deserted his wife 25 years ago. His wife married Christian Colestock, a rich bachelor, aged 76, three years ago; he died shortly afterward, leaving his wife his property. Gilbert returned to Huntingdon a short time ago, and wants his wife to live with him. The estate has not yet been settled but it is understood that when it is the woman will again marry her previous husband.

THE wife of Lord Randolph Churchill is a daughter of Leonard Jerome, of New York. Her husband is now prominent in English politics, and is a member of Salisbury's administration. Last week he was a Tory candidate for a seat in Parliament, and his wife ran his campaign. She drove her tandem team from house to house with pink ribbons flying and arousing a great deal of enthusiasm. The opposition liberals, seeing the effect on the voters of this kind of electioneering, brought down the college girls from Oxford, to arouse national enthusiasm; but the New York woman proved successful and carried the election for her husband by a small majority.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.—A special from Grantville, Ga., says that some days ago T. R. Bingham lost two mules by lightning. John Rowe and Rufus Malcolm rode over with their stock to replace them, but failed to trade, and while returning home a single stroke of lightning killed both men and mules.

A GREAT rise in the Allegheny river yesterday caused much damage.

Merrick died in Washington on Wednesday, in ignorance of the death of her husband, her condition since the latter's death being at no time such as to allow of the sad news being broken to her. FROM THE EAST END.—In Oxford township, a short distance north of Conowago Chapel, on the public road between Hanover and New Oxford, there is a large stone barn that was erected in 1782. It was built and owned by H. D. Slagle. The barn is yet in good preservation and is now the property of John Krug.

The boy was severely but not fatally injured.—The Herald office was in danger last Thursday evening. A file of papers took fire accidentally, but the incipient conflagration was speedily subdued. The genial editor, M. O. Smith, had his hair and whiskers singed and his hat destroyed. PIGEON HILLS.

A STRANGE FREAK.—Among the personal possessions of Squire H. L. Heyd, of Camp Hill, is a large bronze turkey gobbler. Some time ago a large turkey hen hatched out a brood which the gobbler tried to steal away from her. To abate the annoyance the gentleman turkey was penned in the shed where the nest of the mother hen was, and which contained two unprolific eggs. On these the gobbler sat for several days when Mrs. Heyd quietly slipped twenty seven eggs—turkey and duck—under him. He remained faithfully on the nest and the other day brought forth fifteen healthy young turkeys and ten quacking little yellow ducks, which he marshals around the grounds with all the pomp, pride and magnificence of a hero.—Mechanicsburg Saturday Journal.

THERE was a double suicide at Gilson, Illinois, on Wednesday week, the suicides being Melissa Steepleton, a school teacher, and her affianced, Edward Southerland. The two had been for a long time engaged, and the wedding had been several times set and postponed owing to Southerland's circumstances. "Her relatives strenuously opposed his suit. On Tuesday he refused to marry her. That evening she bought rat poison, afterwards exchanging it for arsenic, took a dose of the later in the morning, and died. When Southerland heard of the tragedy, he borrowed a rifle, went into the timber a mile away, and shot the top of his head off."

THE national assemblage of the Grand Army of the Republic, at Portland, Maine, last week, did credit to its members by passing a resolution censuring the attempt which has been made to vote a pension to every one who participated in the war for the Union. The true soldier looks upon a proposition of this character as a reflection on the patriotic soldiers of the war, and as bringing their services down to a mercenary basis. These moves don't come from the soldiers; but are the schemes of the rascally pension agents who are constantly on the lookout for increased facilities for robbing the government through the soldiers.—Shippensburg News, Rep.

...y Temperance Bitters Known.

No other medicine known so effectually purges the blood of deep-seated diseases.

Millions bear testimony to its wonderful curative effects.

It is a purely Vegetable Preparation, made from the native herbs and roots of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol.

It removes the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health.

It is the great Blood Purifier and Life-giving Principle; a Gentle Purgative and Tonic; a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the power of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to.

The Alterative, Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Anti-Bilious, Solvent, Diuretic and Tonic properties of VINEGAR BITTERS exceed those of any other medicine in the world.

No person can take the BITTERS according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Bilious, Remittent, Intermittent and Malarial Fevers are prevalent throughout the United States, particularly in the valleys of our great rivers and their vast tributaries during the Summer and Autumn, especially during seasons of unusual heat and dryness.

These Fevers are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these organs, is absolutely necessary.

There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as it will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus forearmed.

It Invigorates the Stomach and stimulates the torpid Liver and Bowels, cleansing the blood of all impurities, imparting life and vigor to the frame, and carrying off without the aid of Calomel, or other minerals, all poisonous matter from the system. It is easy of administration, prompt in action, and certain in its results.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Pneumonia, Dizziness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are at once relieved by VINEGAR BITTERS.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, the Bitters have no equal. In these, as in all constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS has shown its great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to Paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take occasional doses of VINEGAR BITTERS.

Skin Diseases, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Ulcers, Swellings, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations, Humors and diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of the Bitters.

Pin, Tape and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics, will free the system from worms like VINEGAR BITTERS.

Measles, Scarlet Fever, Mumps, Whooping Cough, and all children's diseases may be made less severe by keeping the bowels open with mild doses of the Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or the turn of life, this Bitters has no equal.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood when its impurities burst through the skin in Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when, and the health of the system will follow.

In conclusion: Give the Bitters a trial. It will speak for itself. One bottle is a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Around each bottle are full directions printed in different languages.

He passed all the examinations creditably, and has the warm wishes of many friends for his success and rise in the service.

LURAY EXCURSION.—Post 9, G. A. R. excursion to the wonderful Luray Caverns Thursday, July 23, 1885. The excursion leaves Gettysburg at 5.30 a. m., Goldenville 5 40, Table Rock 5.48, Biglerville 5.47, Sunnyside 5.50, Bendersville 5.55, Gardner's 6.07, Idaville 6.10, Starner's 6.16, Zion's Church 6.25, Hunter's Run 6.30. Tickets to be had at all stations on the line of the G. & H. R. R. or of the conductor on the train. Fare for round-trip, including admission to the cave, $3.75.

ACCIDENT.—A twelve-year-old son of Mr. Jacob Bream, in Huntington township, last week received a terrible cut from a scythe in the hands of another boy, the leaders above the heel being severed. Dr. Dill gave the case the proper attention.

MR. DAVID E. MCGUIGAN, of this place, has received a pension and back pay to the amount of $1,061.07—pension $8 per month.

POSTMASTERS' BONDS.—Fourth class postmasters are not appointed for any fixed period, but by an act of Congress their bonds are required to be renewed every five years at least. This matter has not received proper attention for a long while, but the present administration is determined to execute this as well as all other laws. Hence the present postmasters at Arendtsville, Abbottstown, East Berlin and other points in this and other counties have been required to renew their bonds, but which does not mean re-appointment to the office by any means. Dr. Swope visited Washington last week and was informed at the Postoffice Department that appointments for this district would be reached at an early day.

MONUMENTS AND AVENUES.—Gettysburg will be kept lively during the coming fall with delegations and excursions to monument unveilings on the battlefield. Massachusetts has two granite monuments in position not yet unveiled and a dozen more have been contracted for. The one by the First Mass. Battery will be placed in the south part of the National Cemetery, the requisite permission having been obtained from the War Department. A large general excursion from that State is expected.

Governor Pattison having signed the bill, the $1,000 monument to mark the spot where Gen. Reynolds fell will go up under the direction of the Adjutant General and Corporal Skelly Post.

The 75th Pa. will erect a handsome monument in the National Cemetery, near the Reynolds statue, next summer.

J. W. Flaharty is at work on a native granite monument, of the sarcophagus order, to be placed on the new Wheatfield Avenue by the 110th Pa. Reg.

Indiana and Ohio are also having monuments prepared, and will doubtless place and unveil a number during the autumn.

The present year will more than double the marks upon the field, all fine and attractive—and next year may do even better.

The Avenue between the Wheatfield and Devil's Den is graded and will be opened for driving as soon as fenced. Work is progressing on the Culp's Hill Avenue, having reached Spangler's Spring, and will be pushed on to the Baltimore turnpike.

INTERESTING BATTLEFIELD FINDS.—A Connecticut soldier, who participated in this battle, visiting the field two weeks ago, called at the George Spangler farm, east of Round-Top, and at the pump observed an old drinking gourd with a familiar appearance. Closer examination revealed a mark he himself had made upon it twenty-two years ago. He proposed to buy it as a relic of special interest, but Mr. Spangler declined the offer and made the gratified soldier a present of it.

During the battle a shell struck near a rock at Culp's Hill and was buried out of sight beneath it. During the recent visit a party of Connecticut soldiers, who had seen the shell strike and disappear in dangerous proximity to them, and had not been here since, offered five dollars for the shell, believing it to be still under the rock. A party of searchers has moved the rock and found the shell.

"ON a tract of country, twenty-five square miles in and around Gettysburg, nearly 200,000 men waged fierce battle, during the first three days of July, '63. Forty thousand of these men were lost. The battlefield is well marked and preserved, and no scene of like conflict in the world affords more and greater attractions to the sight-seer."—Which is what the Wilkesbarre Union-Leader says, and the editor, Captain Bogert, knows whereof he speaks. The same paper announces an excursion from that place to the G. A. R. Encampment at Gettysburg August 8th to 14th. Round-trip tickets $5; good for the whole time.

A VICIOUS JACK.—We are told that on Wednesday last, near Wierman's mill, in Huntington township, a vicious jack attacked a son of John Shetrone as he was crossing a field and with his teeth broke or crushed an arm. The father ran to the son's assistance and the jack made at him, too; but a few vigorous blows with a fence stake settled the business, and the jack seemed glad to get away with a whole hide. The boy injured is about 17 years old.

IMPORTANT RAILROAD ITEMS.—The stockholders of the Harrisburg and Potomac Railroad, on Monday week, at Boiling Springs, elected the following officers: President, C. W. Ahl; Secretary, Asbury Derland; Treasurer, T. W. Ahl; Superintendent, R. H. Middleton; Directors, C. W. Ahl, D. V. Ahl, J. J. Dull, of Harrisburg, A. W. Eichelberger, of Hanover, Asbury Derland, and Messrs. O'Brien, Scott and Quarles, of Philadelphia.

At the same time an agreement was entered into between the Harrisburg and Potomac and Hanover and Gettysburg roads, by which the latter is to build a line of road from Dillsburg junction on the Harrisburg and Potomac through York Springs to Oxford, a station on the Hanover and Gettysburg road, the distance being 21 miles—upon which work is now being pushed.

HARRISBURG HIGH SCHOOL.—The sessions of the Harrisburg schools terminated July 2d, with the twelfth annual commencement of the High Schools in the Grand Opera House of their city.

These high school commencements have in Harrisburg assumed colossal proportions, and are looked forward to as an event of both interest and importance. All the Harrisburg dailies devote columns this year to an account of the exercises, describing them as the most complete that have yet been held. They all bestow high praise upon the principals in charge of the schools. Prof. J. Howard Wert, formerly of Gettysburg, is principal of the boys' school; and Miss Jennie F. Givler, a Cumberland county lady, of the girls' school.

ELI MICKLEY, a teamster hauling charcoal from J. R. Small's coaling to Mont Alto Furnace, was killed on Tuesday by a hind wheel of the loaded wagon passing over his breast and crushing in the ribs. The accident occurred whilst descending a hill near Tarburners' Spring, and drawing the brakes.

IMPROVEMENTS.—At Plainview Mrs. Fidler has built a house and barn, and Jerome Noel is remodeling his dwelling.

At Bragtown John May is building a new house.

In Cumberland township County Commissioner E. D. Keller has enlarged his already spacious barn.

Joseph J. Smith is building a chopping mill near the Foundry for D. McConoughy, Esq.

LYNCHED.—On Saturday morning, about 1 o'clock, Howard Cooper, the negro who violated Miss Kate Gray in a woods near her father's house, on the 2d of April, was taken from the jail at Towsontown, Md., by a party of masked men and hanged to a tree but a few yards distant from his sell. The sheriff refused to give up his prisoner, and the jail door was battered in.

GOV. PATTISON has saved the State many dollars, and the disgrace of bad laws, by his vetoes.

ARENDTSVILLE ITEMS.—Hot and dry; corn is beginning to need rain badly; early potato crop a failure, in fact it is getting too dry for all vegetation.

Rev. Sangree preached a memorial sermon on Sabbath, 5th inst., in the old church. Remarks were made by other brethren of the church. A vacation until 24 of August is given the pastor, after which time services will be regularly held in the Lutheran church. The demolition of part of the old structure will be commenced next week.

Mrs. Rhodes, of Indianapolis, Ind., is visiting her relatives here—Mr. Henry Deardorff and others.

Geo. Lupp, son of John Lupp, Butler township, was out gunning, and in crawling through a barbed wire fence the gun was prematurely discharged and the load passed through his left hand, taking off two-thirds of it. Dr. I. P. Lecrone dressed the wound and it is doing well.

Calvin Lady, of this township, in attempting to kill a copperhead snake by tramping on it, was bitten in the leg. Dr. W. C. Stem attended the case, and Mr. L. is now out of danger, but he suffered greatly from the effects of the poison.

The mail facilities of this place do not meet the accommodation of the people at all. A letter mailed here one day does not reach Gettysburg or any of the offices in the county until the next day. It lies over at Goldenville. Also our mail from south and east reaches us a day later. It seems nothing could be more stupid than this arrangement with our mails. We hope the people will petition and have the matter remedied; as it stands we have the worst facilities for mails of any place in the county.

Mr. H. L. Bream, merchant, at Cashtown, has just completed one of the finest and most commodious store rooms in the county; size of room 22x48x12 with a glass front, French plate. The most of the interior is hard wood finish, ash and walnut; the exterior is brick, front painted white with red trimmings, black posts with gold leaf trimmings. The builder was Wm. Beisecker; painter Geo. L. H. Grammer. It is a credit to Cashtown and to the county.

John Quiggle, Menallen township, sends in a stool of timothy, 7 stalks, which measures 5 feet 3½ inches, and one head 11 inches long.

Anthony Deardorff, Franklin township, sends in several heads of Fultz wheat 6 inches in length.

An error crept into the items last week. Rev. M. Snyder has not been re-appointed P. M. in this place. No appointment has yet been made. G.

FAIRFIELD, July 13.—Ho for the Railroad! The locomotive almost in sight at last, and we hope that by a little united effort on the part of our citizens at this time, it may be seen in our quiet little country village. The completion of the Hanover & Gettysburg Extension, otherwise called the Tapeworm Railroad, to Orr Station, within four miles of our town, has created quite a commotion among our business men, as it is well known that if the Railroad does not come to the town, the town, or at least the business part of it, will go to the Railroad. I notice that our merchants now ordering goods from the cities, have them shipped to that point. But we hope to see the road extended southwestward until a connection is made with the Western Maryland, or some other road, when we might expect a large share of the passenger traffic, and it would also have a tendency to more fully develop the mineral riches of our mountains, and create a large freight business. There would be thousands of tons of ores, besides building stone, bark, rails, R. R. ties, cord-wood, &c. The Hanover & Gettysburg Company has done well, but we hope to see them doing better.

The new firm of Wertz, Kready & King will be ready for business in a few days, at their warehouse at Orr Station, and they deserve success for their enterprise and energy.

Dr. A. P. Beaver, whose health is somewhat impaired, left on Saturday morning for Philadelphia to receive treatment by Dr. Gross.

One day last week, as Howard Musselman, son of John B., was picking berries, he killed a rattlesnake with seven rattles and a button, which he preserves as a trophy of his prowess. A few days previous his brother Ivan encountered a blacksnake which he killed, that measured over five feet. S.

LITTLESTOWN ITEMS.—Tobias Dayhoff has painted his barn and wagon shed; Levi Stonesifer has put up a new wagon shed, and Mrs. Jesse Hilbert a new roof on her barn—all residents of Germany township. David Bair has weatherboarded his dwelling house, Jacob Bixler painted his barn, Eli Bollinger put a new roof on his dwelling house and Abraham Keagy enclosed his yard with an iron railing—all residing in Union township. Alexander Robert, of near White Hall, has put a new roof on his dwelling house and George Hartman, in Mountjoy township, put a new roof on his barn.

Rev. Adam Stump, of York Springs, who, with his family, is visiting friends in Littlestown, preached in St. Paul's church last Sunday evening.

Rev. D. N. Dittmar, who is suffering with astygmatism, is at Philadelphia under treatment with an oculist, his church being closed over Sabbath.

Misses Alice and Grace, daughters of Rev. J. W. Love, of Greensburg, Pa., are the guests of John Slifer.

Mrs. Wm. Howard and son Percy, of Harrisburg, were visiting at Lewis A. Bushman's, at Round-Top, last week. The little boy, aged 5 years, went with the hireling on a spring wagon to the farm for some hay; while returning home they drove along the edge of a hill, the load slipped off, throwing both to the ground, the wagon passing over the legs of the boy, also bruising his head and face and breaking his arm between the wrist and elbow. He was taken to his grandmother's, Mrs. Barker, in Littlestown, where he is doing as well as can be expected.

St. Paul's Lutheran church will hold a Harvest Home celebration of the Sunday school and congregation on Saturday, July 25, in Hon. Wm. McSherry's grove. Several addresses will be delivered in the forenoon and the Silver Run Cornet Band will furnish the music.

The council of the same church has granted the pastor, Rev. E. D. Weigle, one month's vacation, which he will in all probability accept during the month of August.

St. Mark's Sunday School will hold their annual celebration August 1st, in Michael Fiscel's grove, near the church.

July 13, '85. EAGLE-EYE.

TERRIBLE FIRES.—Twenty-three horses were burned to death in a Livery stable at Albany, N. Y., on Sunday morning. Two firemen were killed and two others seriously injured by the falling walls of a piano factory.

At Belfast, Maine, the same morning, a fire resulted in the death of two men and twenty horses.

In Highlandtown, near Baltimore, on Saturday morning, a frame building used by a contractor on the new Philadelphia Railroad was consumed by fire, and twenty-eight head of valuable horses perished in the flames.

FIVE PRISONERS, Thos. Murray, Jas. Manning, W. A. Barton, John Gibbons and A. J. Davidson, escaped from the York jail on Tuesday night and are yet at large. The escape was effected through a negro prisoner, who made keys of hard wood and unlocked the cells. The men sawed off an iron bar and left themselves down from the front roof, nearly 50 feet, with a rope made of clothes, pants, shirts, &c. A reward of $20 is offered for the arrest of each.

THE Odd Fellows of Cumberland and Franklin counties will have their fifth annual reunion at Williams's Grove on Friday, July 24th.

GEN. GRANT is slowly sinking. He realizes the fact himself, his friends know it and his physicians plainly say death is not far off.

To keep the Blood Pure and the bowels well regulated, be careful of your diet; do not use rum or tobacco, and take occasional doses of Vinegar Bitters. Perfect health must follow such a course. The range of diseases that can be relieved by the use of Vinegar Bitters is literally without limit.

CHILDREN were born to a mother and daughter at the same time and in the same house in Illinois the other day. The babies were dressed and put in the cradle together. When they were taken up, soon after, neither mother knew her own child, and to-day they are still wondering which is which.

VERY REMARKABLE RECOVERY.—Mr. Geo. V. Willing, of Manchester, Mich., writes: "My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two Bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved, that she is able now to do her own work."

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testimonials attest their great curative powers. Only fifty cents a bottle at J. M. Huber's. 2

JACOB DRORBAUGH, of Rossville, lost his $200 horse in Gettysburg of colic, on Wednesday, says an exchange.

To most children the bare suggestion of a dose of castor oil is nauseating. Why not, then, when physic is necessary for the little ones, use Ayer's Cathartic Pills? They combine every essential and valuable principle of a cathartic medicine, and being sugar-coated are easily taken.

ABE BUZZARD, the convict, is making baskets.

TIRED AND LANGUID WOMEN.—How many women there are of whom these words are true: "They feel languid and tired, hardly able to bear their weight on their feet, the bloom all gone from their cheeks, irritable and cross without meaning to be, nerves all upset, worried with the children, fretted over little things, a burden to themselves, and yet with no acute disease." What a pity it is. But a few bottles of Parker's Tonic will drive all this away, and relieve the troubles peculiar to their sex.

ABOUT 75 young Indians left Carlisle for their homes week before last and about 60 last week.

THERE is no use fighting nature. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy does nothing of that kind. It does not make the sufferers who trust it worse under the pretence of doing them good. It acts tenderly and in sympathy with what nature herself is trying to accomplish. Do you have trouble with your digestion, your liver or your kidneys? Does rheumatism pain and rack you? Is your head thick and heavy? It will charm away these ailments almost ere you are aware.

VANDERBILT cannot dispose of the South Pennsylvania without the consent of the Pittsburg interest and that interest is hostile to the Pennsylvania Railroad.

BAD DRAINAGE causes much sickness. Bad blood and improper action of the liver and kidneys is bad drainage to the human system, which Burdock Blood Bitters will remedy.

GEORGE STRAYER, of York, was drowned at Trout Run, Wednesday, in presence of his wife, son and daughter.

HEALTH, WEALTH AND HAPPINESS are more intimately connected with a sound stomach and good condition of the blood than most people suppose. Thin blood means weakness, languor and misery. A dyspeptic stomach means all the horrors you can think of. Brown's Iron Bitters means enriched blood, good digestion, healthy appetite, sweet sleep and vigorous strength. Mr. Henry Hallan, South 17th street, St. Louis, says, "Brown's Iron Bitters relieved me of dyspepsia, purified my blood, and gave me an appetite." Thousands of others testify in the same way.

THE blackberry season is approaching and the Berks county newspapers have trotted out a wild man, "with a face, half human and half dog," who terrifies the women around Flowtown.

ONLY FRACTIONS OF LIVES.—How many persons live only a fraction of average human life because they neglect to take the commonest precautions against sickness. It is disease in its maturity that kills, and maturity implies growth. A slight indisposition is usually slighted. They who avail themselves of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters know it to be efficacious in chronic cases of disease, but the process of cure is a far easier one if it is used in early stages of dyspepsia, malarial disease, rheumatism, constipation and liver derangement. Let those who would avoid the peril which even the most potent remedies cannot avert, steer clear of the rock upon which so many constitions split—an under-appreciation of the danger of neglect. It will not do to omit care and a recourse to medicine when health is affected. If debilitated, or nervous, or dyspeptic take it for granted you are in want of a remedy, use the Bitters. je30.1m

ONE of the most singularly sudden and destructive storms that ever visited Harrisburg, put in an appearance Thursday afternoon. Trees were blown and uprooted.

J. A. HORTZELL, Esq., Hickory, N. C., says he used the fertilizer made of Powell's Prepared Chemicals for tobacco, 200 lbs. to the acre, side by side with a fertilizer costing $50 per ton, same quantity of each, and considers the Powell's Chemicals as good, if not better, than the other. The chemicals only cost $6 per bbl., a sufficient quantity to make one-half ton of complete fertilizer. Brown Chemical Co., manufacturers, Baltimore, Md. D. D. Gitt, agent, Arendtsville, Pa.

IT is not generally known that Washington was the inventor of a plow, which was considered a marvel of ingenuity at the time.

ALMOST every person has some form of scrofulous poison latent in his veins. When this develops in scrofulous sores, ulcers, or eruptions, or takes the form of rheumatism, or organic diseases, the suffering that ensues is terrible beyond description. Hence the gratitude of those who discover, as thousands yearly do, that Ayer's Sarsaparilla will thoroughly eradicate this evil from the system.

RAILS, sleepers and even tuning forks and grindstones are now made of glass, the low cost of hard glass castings, about $1.32 per hundred weight, being a strong recommendation.

WHAT WILL SURELY DO IT.—One's hair begins to fall out from many causes. The important question is: What is sure to make it grow in again? According to the testimony of thousands, Parker's Hair Balsam will do it. It quickly covers bald spots, restores the original color when the hair is gray or faded, eradicates dandruff, and causes the scalp to feel cool and well. It is not a dye, not greasy, highly perfumed, safe. Never disappoints those who require a nice, reliable dressing.

A LAND SLIDE at Jefferson Depot, N. H., stripped a forest two miles long and fifteen rods wide. The debris extended half a mile from the base of the mountain, smashing the barn of Oscar Stanley, killing cattle and breaking both of Stanley's legs. He was milking at the time.

QUEER reading would be the history of names. We cannot, however, go into the subject now, except so far as to say that Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" was called by that name, in an informal fashion, long before the Doctor dreamed of advertising it for public use. Speaking of it he would say to his patients, "This is my favorite remedy for all troubles of the blood," &c., and its success was so great that he finally spelled the name with capital letters.

Thousands of once hopeless sufferers now gratefully proclaim they owe their lives to this New Discovery. It will cost you nothing to give it a trial. Free Trial Bottles at J. M. Huber's Drug Store. WHY SALT SHOWS ON BUTTER.

It is not uncommon to see butter in rolls or prints of good quality and tolerably fresh with a coating of salt crystals all over the outside, giving it a stale and unpleasant appearance. This may be caused in several ways. If the salt used is of pure quality, and particularly if it is too coarse in grain, it fails to be well incorporated in the butter, and, changing to brine after the rolls have been made up, it comes to the surface and takes the form of a crust. The finest and best salt, not well worked into the butter, will act in the same way. Again, if there is more moisture left in the butter than it will naturally hold, the salt joins with this extra water to form brine; this brine finds its way to the outside, evaporates and leaves the salt covering.

The best means, therefore, of avoiding this difficulty, is to make the butter by the granular method, wash it very thoroughly and allow it to drain and dry off well, while still in the granular form, before adding the salt. Then mix in the salt as thoroughly as possible, having it of the best quality and as fine as can be got; allow it to stand a little while before working and putting into its final form. This gives an opportunity for all the salt to dissolve before the working and then for removing all surplus brine.

All butter, however, contains a pretty large percentage of moisture in the form of brine, and it must be kept in a moist atmosphere or else the water of the brine will evaporate more or less, leaving the salt visible on the outside. Any good butter will show this dry salt if exposed long enough in very dry air.—Major Alvord in New England Homestead.

A most important study on the farm is how to save labor and economize time. There should not be any attempt to save, or rather to avoid, any labor required to do everything well, but the point is to not waste time and strength in doing things really unnecessary. Yet much time is often lost in doing necessary work. Perhaps more time and labor is really lost in the cultivation of crops than in any other way. Often the implements used are nondescript and ill-shaped. The plow and hoe are often used too much and the drag and harrow not enough. Time is always lost and labor spent, at least partially, in vain whenever the crops are not cultivated sufficiently to insure their highest yield, and whenever any piece of work is done in such a manner as to necessitate it being done over again in a short time. Labor is never spent in vain when it leads to the accomplishment of good results.—Stockman.

Worms in horses not only irritate the intestines but rob the animals of a portion of the nutriment of the food. The poor beasts show by their rough and woe-begone appearance how much they suffer. These pests increase in animals that are not robust and that have indigestion and various other disorders, for they feed upon the products of such diseases. The first thing, then, is to get the digestive organs into a healthful condition and to nourish them well, when the absence of impure matter in the intestines at once starts the parasites and they disappear.

Carelessness about the feet of horses produces much trouble. Loose nails or fragments of them are left in the hoof and work their way into the interior, and produce inflammation, which spreads up to the coronet or elsewhere and forms a fistula. This is very difficult to cure, because the horse's foot is encased in a tight box from which the pus and diseased matter cannot escape. Care to prevent it should be constant.

Here are some things to remember: That lard will cure warts on all kinds of stock; that lard and lamp oil mixed in equal quantities will destroy lice and all kinds of vermin on stock; that sulphur is good for the hogs, and mixed in their feed will drive the lice off of poultry and stock, and the ticks from sheep; that two or three applications of hot blue vitriol to the feet of sheep affected with the foot-rot will cure that evil; that wood ashes are the best remedy known to relieve horses of intestinal worms; that vegetables will relieve constipation if taken in time; that arnica will relieve garget and caked udders.—N. Y. Mail.

Milking at Noon.—In long summer days, when cows fresh in milk have plenty of grass, they cannot easily carry the burden of milk produced between early morning and the usual time for milking at night. Milking at noon is a good plan in such cases, as it nearly equalizes the intervening times. While the milk is in the bag some of its fat is being constantly absorbed by the cow. Hence frequent milking produces a larger product of butter, but the cow needs all the heavier feeding to stand such a demand on her milk-producing capacity.

Does Thunder Turn Milk Sour? —What does make milk sour much more on showery days than on others? My answer is, heat and a change of temperature. The conditions which favor this answer are these, that a thunder shower is almost invariably preceded by a hot wave. However clear the sky may be, if during the day the temperature rises rapidly, and the air is hot and muggy, we may confidently look for a thunder shower and the milk to be sour.—W. C. Leonard, in American Dairyman.

Standard Pear Trees Best.—Mr. P. T. Quinn, a noted New Jersey horticulturist and the author of Pear Culture for Profit, avers that after twenty-five years' experience in raising pears for the market, he has come to the conclusion that if he were about to plant an orchard and could get dwarf pear trees for nothing, while at the same time he had to pay $500 a thousand for Standards, he should not hesitate a moment in taking the latter. Pretty strong testimony, and yet only a few years ago dwarf pears were popular.

When to Cut Timber.—Timber cut between June and September keeps sound longer than if cut in winter. The old rule was to cut in August, but any time will do while the foliage is full. The reason for this probably is that the leaves on the tree help to dry it more rapidly than it would if the leaves were removed. The hot weather of summer months is also more favorable for seasoning timber than fall or winter. In very early spring, while the wood is full of sap, is the worst time to cut timber for keeping.

A small dish of charcoal placed in your meat larder will keep the article sweet and wholesome almost as well as ice. Charcoal is a great disinfectant. Occasionally used for cleaning the teeth it will sweeten the breath when nothing else will do so.

A correspondent claims that lemons will keep fresh for months if placed in a jar of buttermilk, changing the milk every fortnight.

Americans have $125,000,000 invested in Mexican railways.

HINTS ON BATHING.

An excellent writer of undoubted authority, says Godey's Magazine, observes:

"It ought never to be forgotten that everything depends upon the general power of the individual, the state of the system, especially of the skin, at the moment of immersion, and the season of the year. As to the immersion of infants and young children, it is clear that water of a higher temperature than what feels cool to the hand of the nurse should be used, particularly in winter, when the power of regaining a proper degree of heat is necessarily less. The attempt to harden children by exposure to too great a degree of cold is of the most injurious nature; it either produces acute diseases of the lungs, which are then very sensitive to external impressions, or disease of the digestive organs, leading to disease of the mesenteric glands, scrofula, water in the brain, or, if they survive a few years, to early consumption. Delicate and feeble persons of all ages require a higher temperature of the bath, and a shorter stay in it than others. If the reaction does not speedily take place, means must be employed to ensure its so-doing, or the use of the cold bath must be abandoned. Though in most cases moderate exercise is advantageous before bathing, unless the person has an opportunity of springing out of the bed into the bath he should never think of undressing and going into the water when fatigued, or when the skin is covered with perspiration. It is a good rule to wet the head before taking a plunge. For a person in good health, in the morning is the best to bathe; for one more delicate, from two to three hours after breakfast is preferable; but no one should bathe immediately after a full meal, particularly if there be an apoplectic tendency."

A distinguished physician believes from his practice that infants, generally, whether brought up at the breast or artificially, are not supplied with sufficient water, the fluid portion of their food being quickly taken up and leaving the solid too thick to be easily digested. In warm, dry weather, healthy babies will take water every hour with advantage, and their frequent fretfulness and rise of temperature is often directly due to their not having it.

The horses of the United States are worth, according to the report of the Department of Agriculture, $852,282,000, and the mules are worth $162,101,000. There was less shrinkage in values in horses during the past year than in any other class of live stock.

A good test of suspected butter is to drop a piece into a well heated frying pan. If it be genuine butter it will melt and bubble or boil, but not sputter; if it be oleomargarine it will sputter until melted.

A leading scientist asserts that the mosquito is responsible for many diseases humanity is heir to. With his sharp probe he punctures the skin and draws out the blood of his victim. When his gorge is satisfied he withdraws that fine lancet and leaves behind the seeds of malaria and fever that have been picked up in his swampy home. Fear is expressed that the little insect will dodge all quarantine, and when once the cholera obtains a foothold in this country will disseminate its germs widely.

Statistics show that the dairy products of this country exceed the oat crop $350,000,000, the wheat crop $100,000,000, the cotton crop $220,000,000, the product of iron bars and steel $257,000,000, and the pig iron output $419,000,000.

Heat is fatal to cholera germs, as the following incident shows: When the disease was raging with extreme virulence in Paris, Ky., in 1849, a family of 30 persons passed through the ordeal entirely unharmed, the only precaution taken being the boiling of the water used for drinking and culinary purposes, and the cooking of all the food they consumed. With a little trouble and less expense every family could avail itself of this protection, and perhaps prove it to be an invaluable discovery.

The rooster belonging to Robert Dyes, of Chester county, which has become famous throughout the local newspapers by its faithful efforts to hatch out a nest-full of eggs, has at last succeeded in hatching from fifteen eggs, fourteen chickens, and has since been taking as good care of them as if he was their natural mother.

It is said that very cold water sprinkled upon cabbage in the heat of the day will effectually rid it of all worms, such an application causing them to quickly let go their hold upon the leaves, curl up, roll to the ground and die, while the cabbage is made to look all the fresher by the application.

No machine of travel, says a scientist, that man ever invented can equal the speed of wild fowls. The canvas-back duck flies two miles a minute. The broadbill goes slightly slower. Teal can fly at the rate of 100 miles an hour, the wild goose about 90. How about a lie? That's an human invention, and travels about 700 miles in a second.

On a recent trial a cedar log 20 feet long was taken to a California match factory and in exactly 30 minutes was sawed, split, glued, dipped in sulphur, labeled, and the matches boxed ready shipment.

A young lady was asked recently which she preferred of two brothers. She responded: "When I am with either of them I prefer the other."

An 18-year-old boy was before a Kentucky Court for carrying deadly weapons. The Judge consented to dismiss the case on condition that his mother cowhided him in open Court, which she did with a will, stripping him to the waist.

A gentleman was complimenting a pretty young lady in the presence of his wife. "It is lucky I did not meet Miss Hopkins before I married you, my dear." "Well, yes; it is extremely lucky—for her," was the dry rejoinder.

Amputation of the Leg.

Money is the universal necessity, and none but a cynic or a fool will affect to despise it. Mr. Abram Ellsworth, of Port Ewen, Ulster county, had realized this truth. His disease involved the whole of his thigh-bone, and the suffering man looked forward, not without apparent reason, to death as his only deliverer. The family physicians refused to amputate the limb, asserting that the operation would kill the patient on the spot. Dr. David KENNEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., who was consulted, held a different opinion and amputated the limb. The doctor then administered freely his great Blood Specific FAVORITE REMEDY to afford tone and strength to the system and prevent the return of the disease, and Mr. Ellsworth remains to this day in the bloom of health. This gentleman's disease was the offspring of foul blood, and Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY purified the blood and restored to him the power once more to enjoy his life. Are you suffering from any disease traceable to the same cause? Try Favorite Remedy. Your druggist has it. ONE DOLLAR a bottle. Bear in mind the proprietor's name and address: Dr. David KENNEDY, Rondout, N. Y.

To Keep the Blood Pure is the principal end of inventions and discoveries in medicine. To this object probably no one has contributed more signally than Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., in the production of a medicine which has become famous under the title of the "Favorite Remedy." It removes all impurities of the Blood, regulates the disordered Liver and Kidneys, cures Constipation, Dyspepsia and all diseases and weaknesses peculiar to females. July 7. 1m

Ten students fitted for college and admitted in 1883. Twenty in 1884. A Graduating Class every year in the Commercial Department. Fine school buildings, in which all the students live with the Principal. No boarding out in private families. Rooms carpeted and furnished with wardrobe, bureau, table, washstand, toilet set, two single beds with springs, good mattresses, pillows, and an ample supply of bedding, all in complete order, etc. Buildings carpeted throughout, and thoroughly heated by steam. Rooms for two boys. No large dormitories. Rooms lighted with gas. Media Academy sets a generous table. The students are not poorly fed under the economical plea that plain food and meagre diet are best for students. Dining room fitted out in the best manner. Experienced men waiters. First class steam laundry. Day and night watchman. A gymnasium, with two bowling-alleys and other fixtures. Ample grounds for base ball, foot ball and other athletic sports. Drainage and water supply perfect. No malaria. The health record of Media has few parallels. Media Academy has all the conveniences and appliances necessary to make it a real home and a first-class academy. A school for the training for gentlemen. No hazing or other rowdyism. No "roughing it." Students at this academy must not sacrifice the home influence for an education devoid of good morals, good manners and genteel surroundings. The school is adapted in every way to the education of young men and boys only. Media Academy is not a mixed school, but strictly a boarding school for the male sex. Media has seven churches, and a Temperance charter which prohibits the sale of intoxicating drinks. Media is conveniently accessible from all points. Nineteen trains leave Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, for Media. Return trains every hour; distance, thirteen miles. Ask at Media for Academy coach, which meets every train. Drive to the school, only five minutes. For new illustrated circular of Media Academy address the Principal and Proprietor, SWITHIN C. SHORTLIDGE, A. B. and A. M., (Graduate of Phillips' Exeter Academy and Harvard College), Media, Penna. Sept. 23, 1884. 1y
